

How to Refer a Patient for Genetic Counseling

Genetic counseling creates an opportunity for everyone — provider, the patient, and their family — to better understand the clinical path forward.

Once you determine that your patient qualifies to receive genetic counseling (use our “Risk Assessment Tool” included in your kit), click here to access our secure Referral Portal platform.

Be sure to have the following information handy to complete the referral:

- Patient full name, date of birth, gender, contact information, address
- Referring provider name, address, NPI and contact information
- Patient insurance information (if applicable)
- Information about the suspected condition, any symptoms, etc.
- Family medical history
